

Your INL Update — Week of March 9, 2009

This is Nicole Stricker with your INL Update...

Public invited to tour CAES: The general public can now tour the newly dedicated Center for Advanced Energy Studies — a partnership between Idaho National Laboratory and Idaho's public universities. Click on "media contacts" in the INL.gov Newsroom and call Kortny Rolston to make an appointment.

CAES will help address Idaho's energy needs with a conference in Boise this week. The first annual Energy Policy Institute Summit will be March 12th and 13th at Boise State University. INL Lab Director John Grossenbacher's keynote address will kick off the conference about current and future energy challenges facing Idaho.

INL Scholastic Tournament comes to eastern Idaho: Local high school students will participate in regional competitions for the 19th Annual INL Scholastic Tournament this week. Regional winners will compete in a state tournament, and state winners will head to the National Science Bowl in Washington, D.C.

This was your INL Update. Read more information at INL.gov where you will find community announcements and the latest INL news.